I asked Waded to clarify the budget council's role to help us with our upcoming meeting. My question and her response are below. Her response means that the current Budget Council Mission and Areas of Responsibility from the web is what we are charged with. That document begins with "Consideration of entire University budget (including Agencies)," which includes auxiliaries.

Hi, wendy:

Thanks for your email. At this moment, I think the document we have for Budget Council will serve us well.

I think that we can start gaining further clarification can be gained by closely aligning the Council's calendar of meetings with the BoR meetings.

I will be sending out something today.

Thanks for your help,

Waded

Waded,

I thought I'd try to ask this again since we haven't gotten clarification from you on this. The below is from an email sent around to the Budget council task force last week:

"Waded, given that there continues to be confusion about what you see as our role v. the Mission and Areas of Responsibility posted on the web, I hope you can come or perhaps write a memo to the committee to clarify things (item 1 on agenda). I think us trying to debate what you want and then going back and forth with you would waste a lot of time, energy, and goodwill. If what you want differs from what is posted on the web, I think that needs to be made as clear as possible. Based on outside discussions and the post-October meeting email traffic, a particular sticking point is the role of the Council with respect to the Auxiliaries budget."

Can you let us know your plans (i.e., attend the meeting, write a memo) since the Budget Council meets on Friday and clarifying our role is of primary importance before we can proceed with much else...

~Wendy
