ORDER OF EXERCISES AND NAMES OF CANDIDATES

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The academic regalia—consisting of cap, gown and hood—originated in about the twelfth century. It was primarily worn for warmth. Subsequently, the material of the gown and the lining and shape of the hood represented economic and social as well as academic status.

In the United States, the majority of the academic regalia now worn is in accordance with the general provisions of the Intercollegiate Code of 1895. Under this code, bachelors' gowns are made with pointed sleeves; masters' gowns are made with long, closed sleeves with an arc near the bottom; doctors' gowns are made with round, open sleeves. Usually gowns are black, although some American and foreign universities use colors.

Bachelors' and masters' gowns are untrimmed. Doctors' gowns are faced down the front with velvet with three velvet bars across the sleeves. The velvet facing and bars may be black or they may be the color of the field of study. A woman may wear a white collar with a bachelor's gown.

Hoods are black. The doctor's hood is four feet in length; the master's three and one-half feet. Hoods are lined with the official colors of the university. The velvet borders of the hoods, which are three and five inches wide for the masters' and doctors' degrees respectively, identify the fields of study to which the degrees pertain.

The black mortarboard cap is standard in the United States. It is an essential part of the academic dress and is to be retained on the head throughout all academic exercises except during prayer. In particular, the cap is not to be removed at any point in the conferment of a degree.

A long tassel is fastened to the middle top point of the cap and lies as it will thereon. Students graduating with highest honors wear a gold tassel on their caps. A blue tassel identifies those graduating with honors.

Students from Montana State University who have served a period of active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces are wearing a red, white, and blue honor cord during Commencement ceremonies in recognition of their service to our country.

For all academic purposes, the colors associated with the different subjects are as follows:

Business. . . . .	Sapphire Blue

ROBERT E. “BOB” LEE

HONORARY DOCTORATE OF ANIMAL AND RANGE SCIENCES

Robert E. “Bob” Lee is a rancher from Judith Gap and respected leader in the national agricultural community who has repeatedly demonstrated his commitment to education.

Lee and his wife, Kathy, own and operate the Robert E. Lee Ranch Company, a diversified cattle and grain operation located in the foothills of the Snowy Mountains in central Montana. The ranch has been recognized for its approach to managing its natural resources, including rangeland and water. It is also well-known for the educational tours it offers to groups from across the state and nation, as well as around the globe.

Lee served as chairman of the Montana Board of Livestock from 1999-2005, as well as chairman of the Montana Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative steering committee and Montana Governor’s Rangelands Resource executive committee.

He has also served on the Natural Resources Conservation Service State Technical Committee, on the Montana Range Days Steering Committee Board of Directors, and as a member of the Montana State University President’s Advisory Board. Lee was instrumental in creating an advisory committee for the MSU Department of Animal and Range Sciences and served as chairman of the committee for approximately seven years. He also helped start and is a member of the Judith Gap Range and Pasture group, a group of producers committed to helping each other.

On a national level, Lee has served as chairman of the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association (NCBA) Property Rights and Environmental Management Committee, as well as on the National Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative steering committee.

Lee’s honors include receiving a national Environment Stewardship Award from the NCBA and being named Range Man of the Year by Montana Rural Area Development. He received a Distinguished Service Award from the Montana Stockgrowers Association, is in the Montana Range Days Hall of Fame, and was named MSU Agriculturalist of the Year in 1995.

Lee attended MSU Northern, but was drafted two months before graduation and spent six years serving in the Air National Guard.

Lee and his wife have three grown children. All three graduated from MSU.

THE LAND-GRANT HERITAGE

As land-grant institutions, Montana State University and the state's seven tribal colleges have a unique history and mission.

Land-grant universities such as MSU came into being under the federal Morrill Acts of 1862 and 1890. Over the years, land-grant status implied several types of federal support. The first Morrill Act provided grants in the form of federal lands to each state for the establishment of a public institution to fulfill the provisions of the act.

During the first half of the 19th century, the structure of colleges and universities were greatly influenced by European universities, which had educated many of America's leading professors. But these European universities were organized to serve a society which was not democratic. University education was for the male leisure classes, government leaders, and members of the clergy, legal and medical professions.

At first, American institutions, functioning in somewhat the same fashion, offered chiefly the classical and professional curricula. Although the importance of science was gaining recognition, scientific education was not widely available. But by the middle of the 19th century, the general and scientific press were making widespread demands for more agricultural and technical education. Agricultural societies in many states insisted that colleges be available where students could study agriculture.

Passage of the first Morrill Act in 1862 reflected this growing demand for agricultural and technical education. While a number of institutions had begun to expand upon the traditional classical curriculum, higher education was still widely unavailable to many agricultural and industrial workers. The Morrill Act was intended to provide a broad segment of the population with a practical education that had direct relevance to their daily lives. It also provided for military training, an important consideration to President Abraham Lincoln, who signed the act in the midst of the Civil War.

Justin Smith Morrill, a representative and later a senator from Vermont, sponsored the land-grant legislation that bears his name and is generally credited as having secured its passage. Prior to Morrill's support for land-grant legislation, Jonathan Baldwin Turner, a Yale-educated farmer, newspaper editor and college professor, made education for the working class his cause in the mid-19th century. His "Plan for a State University for the Industrial Classes" advanced ideas that are now fundamental to the land-grant system, such as experimental research in agriculture.

An important federal addition to the land-grant mission was the agricultural experiment station program created by the Hatch Act of 1887. Today, the Montana Agricultural Experiment Station operates under MSU with the majority of its programs in Bozeman. Seven MAES centers across the state conduct research relevant to the challenges of Montana's agricultural and natural resource communities.

In 1914, the Smith-Lever Act created a Cooperative Extension Service associated with each U.S. land-grant institution to assist with educational outreach efforts throughout the states. MSU Extension serves all of Montana's 56 counties and five of the state's Native American reservations, providing an enormous range of services in areas that include: agricultural and natural resources, consumer education, nutrition and healthy lifestyles, community resource development and youth development programs for tens of thousands of Montana children through 4-H.

Since their establishment, land-grant colleges and universities have grown to represent a unique system of widely accessible higher education. There is now at least one land-grant institution in every state and territory of the United States, as well as the District of Columbia.

Today, America's land-grant universities continue to fulfill their democratic mandate for openness, accessibility and service to the people. Many of these institutions have joined the ranks of the nation's most distinguished public research universities. Through the land-grant university heritage, millions of students are able to study every academic discipline and explore fields of inquiry far beyond the scope envisioned in the original land-grant mission.

FAIR MSU

By Mabel Kinney Hall

Fling wide our colors bright and true,
Sunlight Gold and Ether Blue,
Fit emblem of our college days,
Proudly we our banner raise

Oh, MSU, right loyally
We offer songs of praise to thee
Long may thy power enduring be,
Alma mater, hail to thee.

STAND UP AND CHEER

Words by Edward A. Duddy

Music by Paul P. McNeely

Stand up and cheer,
Cheer long and loud for dear Montana State,
For today we raise
The blue and gold to wave victorious!

Our sturdy band now is fighting
And we are sure to win the fray
We've got the vim, we're here to win,
For this is dear Montana State.
