

BETTY COFFEY AWARD

The Betty Coffey Award was created in 1986 to recognize faculty who demonstrate outstanding achievement in incorporating women's perspectives in the curriculum or developing academic programs that contribute to the elimination of persistent barriers to the success of women students. The award also honors the memory of Betty Coffey, faculty member in engineering from 1977 to 1984, for her considerable contribution to faculty development, teaching excellence, and women's equity at MSU.
