

PERC is now taking applications for an array of programs and fellowships being offered for students, professors, journalists, researchers, and environmental entrepreneurs. All programs take place in Montana and, depending on the particular program, may include a stipend, room and board, office space and computer, and some travel reimbursement. Take a look at what we have to offer--you might be surprised.

We offer a unique opportunity to improve your business skills, explore a new career, improve your academic experience, or research and write on a topic for which you never have enough time. You will be surrounded by Montana's stunning landscapes and a dynamic mix of people who will punctuate each week with lively and stimulating lectures and seminars on a remarkably wide array of topics. PERC is especially interested in natural resource issues--water, wildlife, public lands, forestry--to mention a few. If any of these areas is your specialty, please give our programs serious consideration.

Check out the list below--pay close attention to the application deadlines--and visit our web site for details and online applications. If you have friends or colleagues who would be interested as well, please pass along this email. For more information or questions, contact us at perc@perc.org or call 1-888-406-9532.

Enviropreneur Camp – An intense educational experience for environmental entrepreneurs who are eager to learn how markets, contracts, and property rights can be harnessed to improve the environment and want a better understanding of how business and economic principles can be applied to environmental problems, July 9-24, 2008. <http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/enviropreneur/camp/basics.php>

Application deadline: March 24, 2008

Student Seminar – A week-long program on free market environmentalism co-sponsored with Liberty Fund, Inc. that offers college students the opportunity to look at non-traditional approaches to pressing environmental issues, June 23-28, 2008. <http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/students/fme/basics.php>

Application deadline: March 26, 2008

Graduate Fellowships – Three months devoted to research and writing for graduate or law students interested in natural resources and environmental issues, summer or fall 2008, or spring 2009.

<http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/students/grad/basics.php>

Application deadlines: March 15 for summer, June 15 for fall, October 15 for spring

Julian Simon Fellowships – For scholars with a focus on empirical work and an imaginative research agenda to develop policy-oriented research on natural resource and environmental conservation. The fellowship is intended to continue the legacy of the late Julian Simon. Please note that this fellowship has an open application process, so applications are always welcome. <http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/professors/julian/basics.php>

Applications for the 2008 Julian Simon Fellowships are now invited. Review of applications will begin March 10, 2008.

Lone Mountain Fellowships – A unique opportunity for scholars, journalists, policy makers, and environmentalists to explore and advance understanding of the role that markets and property rights play in protecting and enhancing environmental resources. Please note that this fellowship has an open application process, so applications are always welcome.

<http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/journalists/lonemountain/basics.php>

Applications for the 2008 Lone Mountain Fellowships are now invited. Review of applications will begin as soon as they are received.

Media Fellowships – An opportunity for journalists to spend a week at PERC exploring an environmental topic of their choice while learning more about how property rights and markets can improve environmental quality. Reporters, editors, columnists, broadcasters, producers, and others are welcome.

Apply now for the 2008 Media Fellowships; dates are flexible.

<http://www.perc.org/enviroprog/journalists/media/basics.php>