The 2016 International Conference on Learning, Teaching, and Student Success (ICLTSS’16), is a global gathering of professionals committed to engaging in a broad discussion of “student success.” The conference program is comprised of keynote speeches, interactive workshops, panel discussions, oral and poster presentations, and opportunities for networking with a broad group of global professionals.

There are traditional barriers between K-12 and higher education, along with silos within these organizations as well. The primary aim of ICLTSS’16 is to bridge organizational and communication gaps between K-12 and higher education and “student success” should be viewed as a journey from kindergarten to career.
