Girl jumping rope at HEPAC community center

Tuesday, October 1st
6 P.M.
SUB Fireside Room, MSU

Scott Nicholson lives and works at the Home of Hope and Peace (HEPAC) community center in Nogales, Mexico. HEPAC is located in an impoverished neighborhood just three miles south of the border wall that separates Nogales, Sonora from Nogales, Arizona - an ideal place to witness the impact of U.S. economic and immigration policies, and to be in solidarity with the people affected by those policies. Scott's presentation will feature his photos to describe the reality of life in Nogales, the perilous journey that migrants take to enter the U.S., and the community work of HEPAC.
