

Dr. Erin Mordecai

Stanford University
Department of Biology

Global change and the ecology of vector transmission
Presentation 9/14 at 3:30 pm Lewis 304

Dr. Mordecai's research focuses on the ecology of infectious disease. She is interested in how climate, species interactions, and global change drive infectious disease dynamics in humans and natural ecosystems. This research combines mathematical modeling and empirical work.

