If the color from highlighting disappears after you have changed the setting to current view, you can still see the original document by following these steps.

1. The picture below shows a document that has color highlighting.

2. This next picture shows what the document looks like after using the function New Version and then Current View.
3. This is the annotation bar for a document that did not use the Current View function.

4. This is an annotation bar for a document that did use the Current View function. Notice these 2 icons. They can be used to toggle between the current version and the previous version.
5. Those icons only appear when there is a previous version. Below is the previous version.
