

An invitation from the MSU Teaching & Learning Committee

The Century Club Spring 2011 Luncheon Meeting

Spring topics by your request!

Join us for a multi-faceted discussion of topics that are sure to be of interest to most large class instructors, with a “techno” twist:

- Using D2L with Large Classes

Electronic Testing: Issues and considerations when using the online testing/quizzing tools in D2L with large classes.

Students Helping Students: Are there useful or crafty ways to get students to collaborate and help each other in the online class environment when they already meet face to face?

—facilitated by Peg Wherry and Sarah Veltkamp, MSU Extended University

- Mobile Devices in (and outside) the Classroom—to Jam or Not to Jam?

They’re everywhere—laptops, smart phones, iPods—and students seem ever more fixated on staying in constant touch with their friends, the web, and the outside world. What strategies are you using to keep from going crazy in your large classroom? What are others doing?

—facilitated by Ritchie Boyd, Office of the Provost

- What’s Next?

A brief open forum to identify topics for next year’s Century Club meetings.

About the Century Club

Montana State University faculty who teach classes of 100 or more students per section play, by virtue of their exposure, a vital role in shaping the educational experiences of many of our students. Under the auspices of MSU’s Teaching & Learning Committee, these faculty are invited to participate in what we are calling “The Century Club.” If you received this invitation and know of someone who has had an impact on MSU students in large classes, please forward their name to annea@montana.edu.

Thursday, April 7, 2011

SUB Room 233

Lunch served: 12:00 noon

Presentation: 12:15-1:30 p.m.

Please RSVP to annea@montana.edu
by Tuesday, April 5, 2011
