Spring 2021 Program Schedule

Students will form working groups to collaboratively explore project ideas for advancing equity or student success on the MSU campus or beyond. These projects will entail (a) identifying an existing barrier to equity or student success, (b) theorizing how, and what, changes to existing systems could address that barrier, (c) consulting relevant bodies of literature, (d) identifying and connecting with key stakeholders to solicit engagement on the project-concept and, finally, (e) summarizing the project in the form of a presentation that can be shared with members of the MSU community, the previously identified stakeholders, or the general public. The amount of time students will need to put into their service-learning projects will likely vary by group, however groups should expect that the time required to accomplish their service-learning projects will approximate the same amount of the time required for participation during the fall workshop series, roughly 18-21 hours spread throughout the semester.
